Executive Minister Opens NEU-SPED Mobile and Solar-Powered Facilities

THANK YOU SO much, Brother Eduardo Manalo, for these very beautiful gifts you have given us. We love you,” said Frederick Segui, one of the children with special needs at New Era University. Frederick was referring to the New Era University Special Education Facilities that were opened for use on March 14, 2013. These facilities, which include playrooms and reading rooms, were conceptualized by the Executive Minister out of his love and concern for children with special needs, along with their parents and teachers.

The program started with an inspection of the NEU-SPED Facilities’ rooms by the Executive Minister. Then the children with special needs performed songs and dances before Brother Eduardo and his family. After their performances, the children gave him thank you cards. The SPED rooms are mobile, air-conditioned, and solar-powered – the first of its kind in the Philippines.

Located near the elementary and high school building, each SPED facility also has its own comfort room and dressing room. The colorful interior design, as well as the skylight, brightens the environment for children, encouraging fun and learning. Various puzzles, board games, toys, and books are available for the kids to enjoy while developing their skills.

Amazed and delighted with the new SPED facilities, the teachers jokingly exclaimed, “While it is easy to encourage them to make use of the rooms, it will be a struggle to get them out of there.”

The visit and the gifts of the Executive Minister all the more inspire the children, parents, and teachers to be all that they can be for the glory of the Almighty God.

Message from the NEU President

Congratulations on your tenth year!

I read from the school history that a decade ago, the NEU SPED Program began its benevolent mission of offering an inclusive education program to children with mild to moderate disabilities. Unlike the New Era University, your Program did not attempt to grow in the number of its enrollees yet its success can be felt and seen in other aspects. Your Program is acknowledged to be one of the best examples of what true inclusion is. One proof is the fact that distinguished developmental pediatricians and diagnosticians refer their client to your Program. Another is the belief and support shown by the Church Administration manifested by the presence of three recently-constructed mobile rooms that house a library, playroom and work center exclusively for use by your clients. One reason is that you have the most caring and experienced administrators and faculty whose forbearing is a great source of unconditional love that parents and students continuously feel and is continually being treasured in the ten years of your existence.

Let me congratulate you also for having your own newsletter. Your newsletter is a very apt medium for showcasing untapped talent and skills of not only your students but parents and educational coaches as well. It is an important channel for circulating information about your Program that other members of the NEU community and the larger society outside have no inkling at all. But most of all, may your newsletter continue to be not only an effective and efficient sounding board of students’ and teachers’ writing potentials, but also a medium of expressing deep-seated feelings, sentiments and thoughts which inspire others as well.

I urge you to continue your efforts and assure you that the School Administration shall always be your partner in all your fruitful undertakings. Kudos and Godspeed!

NEU– SPED “Rocks”
2nd Time
By Teacher MARIE JANE G. GOZO

Our program, along with other nine leading SPED schools in Metro-Manila, participated in the momentous event entitled EdSPEDcically For You on February 2, 2013, at Robinson’s Galleria Activity Center (Ortigas Avenue, Quezon City). This annual celebration of UP SPED Student Council (UPSEC) undertaking was a second time exciting experience for our students. The first was on April 2, 2011 which was held in the same venue. Both NEU-SPED performances were choreographed by teacher Marie Jane G. Gozo. The activity included students from elementary and high school level with special participation of Karlo Turbolencia (NEU-SPED alumnus). The annual event aims to connect and collaborate with different institutions toward advocacy for people with disabilities. Further, this major event was the sixth in the SPEDCanRock! series to showcase talents in theater and other performing arts with this goal: “It is the ability, not the disability that counts”. As a finale, each participating school and its students were given certificates of participation. The positive outcome of this meaningful event brought pride especially among parents and teachers. In addition, the parents and guardians, along with teachers and educational coaches, look forward to another amazing music repertoire as they “Rock” with gusto, for the third time.
Learning Together is Fun at NEU

As Jesus was walking along, he saw a man who had been born blind. His disciples asked him, “Teacher, whose sin caused him to be born blind? Was it his own or his parents’ sin?” Jesus answered, “His blindness has nothing to do with his sins or his parents’ sins. He is blind so that God’s power might be seen at work in him.

John 9:1-3, Good News Translation

This is a part of the Bible story when our Lord Jesus Christ gave sight to the man who had been born blind. We can learn a thing or two in this story. Playing the blame game would do us no good. Instead, just our Lord Jesus Christ helped the man who had been born blind, we could also help and support children with special needs in our own simple way.

Just like typically-growing children, children with special needs also deserve to be welcomed, to belong, to be loved and to participate in every aspect of community life.

SPED Month Celebration

By Teachers MARRY ANNE APPLE M. JACOB and ELLAINE JANN A. SIMEON

In line with the government’s program for the month of February, our program conducted a SPED Month Celebration from February 7 - 15, 2013. The event aimed at catering students' varying skills. The different activities were singing and dancing, cupcake-decorating, and spelling contests. These events were held at the high school (HS) Student Center. Activities like clay-molding, recycled flower arrangement, origami, mask-painting, and photography contests were held in specific SPED classrooms, while the pot-painting contest was held at the HS quad-rangle. The SPED Family Fun Games (composed of relay games) was held on February 12, 2013 at Quezon City Memorial Circle. The concluding activity was SPED Exhibit and Trade Fair held at the HS Student Center on February 15, 2013. The students’ math skills were applied during their product sale as the NEU Community visited, purchased, and admired the works of these talented artists.

That is why New Era University Special Education (NEU-SPED) Program supports the Salamanca Statement (UNESCO, 1994) that states that children with special needs would benefit more through inclusive education provided in regular schools which allow all children to learn together, whatever their characteristics, abilities and difficulties maybe.

However, according to Kathie Snow of Disability is Natural, “Inclusion is not children with disabilities spending the majority of the school day in a special ed room, and being “included” in regular classes for art, PE, and music. This is visitation. Inclusion is not children with disabilities attending regular education classes, but being repeatedly pulled out for special services through the day. This is part-time mainstreaming. Inclusion is not children with disabilities being in regular classes, but sitting at the back of the room with full-time aides. This is physical integration. Inclusion is not typical children (peer role models) visiting children with disabilities in special ed classrooms. This is reverse mainstreaming.” Inclusive education involves much more than integration.

True inclusion only happens when a whole school embraces diversity and creates an environment where everyone belongs. Inclusion means being a part of the school community, both in and out of class. It means having friends and feeling welcome. It means having fun while learning together. It’s the bridge to the future we want for our children that we at NEU-SPED Program, with God’s help and with the support and guidance of the Church and school Administration, are striving for.
10th SPED Recognition Day

The NEU SPED Program 10th Recognition Day was held at NEU Hall on April 3, 2013. The students, together with their parents and families, were welcomed by our SPED Program Director, Sister Penelope P. Sandoval. She expressed appreciation for such kind of occasion and shared the parents’ joy of getting together and recognizing the achievements of their children. The momentous event was graced by this year’s guest speaker, Dr. Nilo Rosas, our newly appointed University President. He was introduced by Bro. Ed H. Lumbao, our former Program Spiritual Adviser. Our President’s message was relevant to this year’s theme, “NEU Graduates: Edified in Values and Morals.”

The much-awaited moment was the awarding of medals and certificates to our selected students from preschool to high school level. The awards given were achievement award, best in specific academic subjects or skills, and winners in specific SPED Program activity contest or extra-curricular activities. Further, the pupils who have shown mastery in ADL (Activities for Daily Living) were also given recognition. In between the awarding ceremony were students’ presentation of songs and dances. Sister Penny thanked all the significant persons who gave meaningful contributions, more specifically the parents and school administrators and staff who worked as a team. They have been instrumental in making this ceremony a success.

NEU SPED Program in the 2013 International Conference
By Teacher MARIE JANE G. GOZO

The NEU SPED Program, through our Directress, Sister Penelope Sandoval, was invited to the seminar, 2013 INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON THE INCLUSIVE EDUCATION IN THE PHILIPPINES: WHERE ARE WE NOW?”

The event was held from February 21-23, 2013 at the Batangas Convention Center, Batangas City. This academic event was in partnership with the Office of the Provincial Governor Vilma Santos-Recto and the Provincial DepEd and School Board of Batangas. The event was organized by the Guro Formation Forum (GFF), Incorporation. The Conference aimed to: define inclusive education in the Philippines; state the policies and programs on inclusive education; look into the role and curricula of education systems; learn different perspectives and paradigms from international experts; create programs and services actualized in learning environments; and strengthen partnerships for the realization of inclusive education in the country.

Sister Penny gave a talk about NEU-SPED as one of the pioneers in inclusive education in the country and its operational program. The relevant information she shared received warm reception, more specifically from the local and international SPED practitioners.

The participants were education stakeholders (i.e. education managers and administrators, university and school officials, teachers, practitioners, researchers, and education students) including those from Bahrain, China, Greece, KSA, Kuwait, Libya, Oman, Qatar and UAE.
Team Building 2013
By Teacher JESSA RAY M. CALMA

The faculty and staff of NEU SPED Program actively participated in its Team Building Workshop from 8:00A.M. -12:00 noon, on May 31, 2013 at the Ecopark in Quezon City. This year’s theme, “Serving our Students with Delight and Excitement”, was spearheaded by then director, Prof. Penelope P. Sandoval, Bro. Glenn Ford Langit (the new SPED Program Consultant who facilitated the activities), our then Program Spiritual Adviser, Bro. Ed Lumbao, and our coordinator, Dr. Liezel A. Vargas. Overall, the event was successful in attaining its objectives. The activity strengthened our teamwork in providing education needs of students with exceptionalities.

SPED Awareness and Appreciation Day
By Teacher APRILYN N. ALMENDRA

The NEU SPED Department, headed by our directress Prof. Penelope P. Sandoval, conducted “SPED Awareness and Appreciation Day” in three school departments including the High School as part of the week-long Faculty Development Seminar dated June 3-7, 2013. Our then spiritual adviser, Bro. Ed Lumbao and current SPED Program Consultant Bro. Glenn Ford Langit, shared relevant information about the SPED Program objectives in terms of: providing special education, more specifically in inclusive setting; and how the faculty and staff members are going to help and manage our students in the general education classes so that these students can perform better.

Relevant questions were raised by most of the teachers in the regular class involving accommodation of students with special needs in reference with their roles as teachers in the regular class and how they effectively collaborate with SPED teachers. Sister Penny gave significant responses with regards to this concern. She also highlighted the strength of each child, not the weaknesses. The NEU-SPED faculty and staff expressed appreciation by awarding of certificates and giving Our SPED Family distributing certificates and long-stemmed roses as token of appreciation to faculty members and staff from the Gen. Education Program. Photo by: Ellaine Jann A. Simeon

WHO’S NEW?
By Teacher MIRELL B. PALMA

The NEU-SPED Program is indeed delighted as it welcomes two new members of the “family”. They are Brother Glen Ford B. Langit, an evangelical worker, as our new NEU-SPED Program’s consultant (who is also serving as the Assistant Director of the Human Resource Department) and Brother Ed H. Lumbao, a minister, as our new Director.
Parent and Educational Coach Orientation
By Teacher CHERRY AMOR S. DIZON

The educational coach and parent orientations were held at NEU High School AVR on June 14, 2013 and June 17, 2013, respectively, as an affirmative start of the academic year. This activity is the yearly preparation of the NEU SPED Program to give the parents and educational coaches information significant to their duties and responsibilities. The attendees were composed of educational coaches, teachers, parents, guardians and students. Teacher Apple, who facilitated the orientation, discussed: the duties and responsibilities of a good and effective educational coach; and the professional ethics for educational coaches inside and outside the regular class. Our SPED coordinator, Dr. Liezel A. Vargas, also reminded the educational coaches to be very vigilant in terms of care and the security measures of students who are under their supervision. The direct consequence in case of negligence was also discussed. This matter was further emphasized by Bro. Ed Lumbao in his talk.

The parent orientation on the other hand, was facilitated by Teachers Felomena Colansi and Delia Tolentino. They discussed about: the university policies, and important reminders that concern educational coaches, the education placements and the grading system. The election of PTA officers was also held after the orientation. Mrs. Elvie Lasquite was elected as the new president of the Parent-Teacher Association of the SPED Program. The attendees, specifically coaches and parents, appreciated this kind of undertaking because it clarifies their specific roles in the program.

The first seminar program of the SPED Department for the A.Y. 2013-2014 was in line with the Nutrition Month celebration entitled, “Preview of Sensory Diet for Children with Special Needs.” It was held on July 19, 2013 at the NEU Moot Court, high school building B. The resource speaker in this relevant topic was Florence Vargas-Rosal, Ed.D and OTRP. She shared significant information on oral food preparation through various types of massage for those children who cannot masticate their food well. The attendees took down notes, especially when she mentioned food examples that are suited for children with special needs (CWSN). Furthermore, establishing good eating behavior among children with special needs was equally helpful.

The second resource speaker who discussed on “The Effect of Proto Embryonic Stage Extract on Stress, Depression, and Neurodisorder” was Mr. Rolly Motilla. The focus of his discussion was the ability of Laminine to potentially cure neurodisorder. The attendees, who were composed of students, teachers, and parents responded positively to this seminar because the gathered information can be implemented in school and at home.
Celebrating Nutrition Month
By Teacher FARIDA RAGA P. AGATEP

On a Thursday of July 25, 2013, the month was filled with colours, flavours, and much excitement as the NEU SPED Program joined the Nutrition month celebration with the theme: “Gutom at Malnutrisyon, Sama-Sama Nating Wakasan”. The activity started with an eye-catching students’ parade, with each participant donning a selected vegetable or fruit costume. This was followed by the Mascot-Designing contest at the HS Student Centre. It featured students from preschool to high school level wearing their costume made out of recycled materials. The contests in the previous days were: Colouring, Slogan-making and Painting on July 11th, and Food Preparation contest on July 18th. The nutrition celebration which was hosted and supervised by teachers Odyssa Belle Pagala and Rose Ann Narciso, was a complete success. Below are the activity winners.

A DECADE OF NEU– SPED SERVICE
By Teacher LIEZEL A. VARGAS

In celebration of 10 years of SPED service in NEU, let us turn back the hands of time through this newsletter. SPED Program in the Elementary level began in 2001 with twelve pupils under the leadership of Dr. Josefa Malibiran and Bro. Orlando Cabigting. The same year that the teacher training in SPED (BEED major in SPED) was offered in college. The DepEd granted the SPED Program permit to operate in August 2003 at the same year it received the full support of the Iglesia Ni Cristo administration. Three rooms served as resource rooms for the growing number of pupils (39) taught by three pioneer teachers. Dr. Josefa Malibiran became the first SPED Directress. Enrollment grew to 75 in SY 2004-2005 with seven teachers. Pupil – teacher ratio was set at 10:1. Bro. Orlando Cabigting became the next SPED Director. Teacher Ester Parlade was designated SPED Coordinator. The Program received full recognition from the government in March 2005. The SPED Program in the High School level started in SY 2005-2006 with one teacher. Additional teachers were hired later both in the Elementary and High School. Teacher-aides were also hired to assist. The SPED curriculum was developed and implemented in SY 2006-2007 when activity plans were introduced. The SPED Progress Report was improvised and the Developmental Program and Curriculum-Based Assessment were initiated. Teacher Weena Villanueva became the SPED Coordinator. Various activities and contests were held to widen the experiences of special learners who numbered more than a hundred. Prof. Fredeswinia Javier was appointed as SPED Consultant. There were changes in leadership in SY 2008-2011 with Bro. Eliezer SG. Ortiz as the SPED Director and Teachers Liezel Vargas and Uelrina Llana as Coordinators in Elementary and High School, respectively. Four additional teachers and two teacher-aides were also hired that year. The SPED Program continued to provide intervention programs and activities geared toward the development of its clients.

2007

Students, Parents, and Educators' Digest* April– September 2013

The school year of 2009-2010 was the year of pioneer undertakings in the SPED high school program. These were: the IEP format along with the modified grading system; the modification of examinations; the sports high school SPED intramural activity entitled “Laro ng Lahi”; and the “High School SPED Exhibit and Trade Fair”.

“First time undertakings” continued onto school year of 2010-2011. One of these was the informal venture of SPED Program in the Post-Secondary education (the areas were the College, major in Business Management and Non-Formal course in TSDC basic culinary). Another major project was the production of “SPED Musical”. This presentation was a repertoire of Broadway music in which the pieces were mostly selected from Walt Disney movie sound track albums. The show was successfully performed (through songs and dances) by selected students with exceptionalities, parent, and teachers both from the SPED elementary and high school program at the NEU University.
Hall on December 9, 2010. Three months later, selected students from our program performed for the first time in the SPED Can Rock at the Robinson’s Galleria on April, 2011 upon the invitation of the UP SPED Council. Moreover, other areas of the program were given priority. The faculty professional development was intensified through frequent attendance of teachers to district and regional conferences. Furthermore, the membership of mentors in various SPED organization/associations was increased.

The NEU SPED program placement curriculum offering was also improved. One of these was the provision of independent living skills to students. The undertakings such as actual learning experience in using public transportation, performing marketing, household chores, basic cooking or baking, and gardening skills. Likewise the SPED Musical “Bond of the Bands”, was presented at the University Hall on December 8, 2011.

A month after, Brother Eliezer SG. Ortiz left the program for a new administrative duty at NEU General Santos City, as school Principal. He passed the torch unto Professor Penelope “Penny” Sandoval on February 1, 2012. She was one of the dedicated pioneer professors in the College of Education when the Special Education course was first formalized in 2007. It is no doubt that with God’s guidance and the combined effort of significant persons that makes up the program, the legacy will continue under her term.

The New Era University SPED Program is an inclusive education program for children with intellectual disabilities, learning disabilities, autism, attention deficit /hyperactivity disorder, and emotional and behavioral disorders. Anchored on the philosophy of normalization, the children enrolled in the program are given the opportunity to receive education and training, participate in all activities, and be graded alongside their regular counterparts in the regular class.

Children with special needs are assigned to classes with their age mates and with provision of pull-out and assistance of an educational coach. The Program ensures the yearly progression of pupils based on a curriculum that considers both the learning style, pace, and capacity of each pupil.

Ensuring ample developmental advancement in academics and training in activities of daily living and or independence training, the Program aims to facilitate the transition of special children to independent living and employability.

Former NEU-SPED Directors’ Perspectives
On Special Education (Part 1)

By Teacher MARIE JANE G. GOZO

As an added feature to this year’s highlight “A Decade of NEU-SPED Service”, we have reserved a column for our past Directors to share with us their personal reflections during the time that they have been with us in the program. Their respective thoughts hope to complete the colorful array of NEU SPED Program meaningful events, of which we are so fortunate to capture through this humble paper. Let us start with Bro. Orlando Cabigting.

Bro. ORLANDO CABIGTING
He now serves as the Dean in College of Arts and Sciences, NEU-Main)

“The idea of putting up a special education program at NEU started when I was taking my master’s degree at UP Dili-
Community especially from the parents of regular pupils, the teachers and administrators. But we hurdled all the obstacles by conducting orientation to all stakeholders and by offering a crash-course for elementary faculty. We introduced the rudiments of SPEd to all parents, nannies, regular teachers, administrators, staff, canteeners, and security guards. Thanks God, through fervent prayers and by applying the principle of mainstreaming, and thanks to Dr. Ed Dizon, my adviser, little by little the NEU community was able to see the value of the program.

We had the first assembly then entitled ‘Including the Excluded’ which served as the turning point for NEU to imbibe the spirit of “becoming” (as Dr. Dizon puts it, if you cannot extend help to others, you cease to “become”, or be purposeful in your life) Simultaneously, the BEED program and the Master’s degree for SPEd were offered at NEU so we had no problem recruiting teacher aides and practicumers.

Thus, the program became self-sustaining. From barely 12 pupils, it ballooned to more than 100 after three years. As time passed by, we have been seeing the improvement of our children. It has been said that it takes a village to raise a child, but with perseverance, diligence, and faith in God, these children will finally reach the main goal of our crusade; normalization. Though the work is tedious, the emotional and spiritual fulfillment is truly immeasurable.

More power to the SPED family!”

Bro. ELIEZER SG. ORTIZ

(NEU-SPEd DIRECTOR from Dec.2007 – Feb. 2012. He now serves as the School Principal in NEU-GSC Branch)

“When my designation as a SPED Director became official in December 2007, I honestly admit that there had been hesitation if I could do it well. Although my Master’s degree is directly relevant to this kind of responsibility, educational attainment wise, still, I worried that I didn’t know enough… The hard adjustment also took a toll on me as I also served as an assistant NEU High School Principal and a doctorate student at the same time, while placing a premium on my duties as a Minister. Later on, I concentrated on NEU—Special Education Program. Three things became my threshold of strength to appease my fears in this novel task.

First, our God Almighty. Through heartfelt prayers, the operational plans of the program had been realized, (mostly pioneering projects). Further, the support of our Church and school administration; our consultant, Sister Penelope P. Sandoval; Dr. Edilberto Dizon; NEU-SPEd family; and other significant persons, who have given so much selflessly.

The second source of my strength—our students in the program. There were challenges. I noticed that while the movement to include students with disabilities has been mostly encouraging, there have been some difficulties too. Dealing with significant persons who seemed to be indifferent to these students in their rooms had been one of the most challenging hindrance to our successful inclusion.

Nonetheless, full inclusion was not always a suitable education placement for many students whose education plan calls for special instruction. I observed that the Resource Room Model worked (where students spend most of their days in regular classes but are tutored into the resource room for specialized instruction). I supported this model to be utilized in teaching approaches. It gives the students chances to be with peers for socialization purposes and chances for lesson modification by SPEd teachers.

Our paraprofessionals and the functional involvement of special education, with the cooperation of classroom teachers can make the difference between successful and less successful inclusion experiences for each child with exceptionality as well as for their non-disabled peers. Seeing them connect with their peers or communicate in some ways, or learn some skills, have some tools, that would help them inside and outside the school was rewarding enough for the toils we did as education providers.

And the third source in intensifying my courage has been this belief: Leaders like me may come and go, but the legacy will remain and will continue to influence each child’s education in the program… Let it be a legacy the school and Church Administration hope for, in line with the Vision and Mission of the NEU SPEd Program. Build this in the best of your effort… treat each day as your last term, because there’s no room for regret tomorrow.”

Reflections: Graduation, Inclusive Education and Children and Youth with Special Needs

By Teacher PENEOPE P. SANDOVAL

On April 3 and 4, 2013, preschool, grade school and high school commencement exercises were held as we witnessed our special students received their certificates with their regular peers. I watched them with so much pride as they went upstage, shook hands with the school officials, and smiled while their pictures were taken. Sense of belonging and being “normalized” were again exemplified not only in the New Era University classrooms, when our students are mainstreamed/included in the regular classrooms and provided with similar and equal opportunities as their regular counterparts but as well as momentous occasions such as during graduation. The NEU SPED program is one of the pioneers of inclusive education in the Philippines, in our belief that special learners must be placed with their peers regardless of their exceptionalities and degree of functioning. Regular teachers, students and different office personnel have become accustomed to their presence, welcomed and supported them. SPED teachers, parents, supporters and advocates of Inclusive Education have indeed come a long way, however, there are still so much to be accomplished.

We will continue dreaming and working until we achieved our goals of providing special students not only schools which will accept them with open arms, recognize their gifts and appreciate diversity but as well as “barrier-free” communities where they can have access to and enjoy leisure and recreation, travel, and even employment commensurate with their talents and skills. Then, we can declare we have succeeded in implementing the inclusive principle/philosophy for children and youth special education needs.

Raining Ants

Raining ants
Is it me?
With my 5 senses
Hearing the splash
As I sit in my hammock
Smelling the drops of rain
Stopping time in the clock
Watching the sun as it turns red
And then orange
Things never change
Black and then red
Raining ants
Lying in the hammock
As if it’s my bed
Head stay still
There is no king of the hill
There is no king of the world
Its an ordinary me
As my head stays still Watching clouds go by
There I sigh
It's raining ants.

Guro Ko

Nakaupo,nakaupo ako, nakaupo ako sa upuan, hinhintay, hinhintay, hinhintay ang orasan, Tingin sa Oras, Ako ay parang nangungupagas, tingin sa notebook, maraming pahinang tastas.
Hintay ng Guro, naghihintay ako ng Guro
Habang ang isang kaklase, bumbulwak, bungangang punong-puno
Isla kong kaklaseng nakasalamin, umingles sa Inglesero.
Orasan, Orasan, bumbilis ang kamay; Bawat oras, bawat minuto, balat naming lutong luto
Bawat galaw ng kamay, tingin ako sa kaklase, siya ang hari ng sablay;
Sabay kaming sabay napatingin naisip kung sinong...Magaling.
Guro ko, Guro ko, sa’n ka na, guro ko, tumutubo na ang pakpak, sa likod ko, guro ko;
Lilipad, lilipad, lilipad na ako sa langit,
Sa’n ka na, Sa’n ka na, ako ay nainip, upuan ko’y naiilig na sa pawis,
Guro ko, Guro ko, nagkakagulo na, sa’n ka na, sa’n ka na, o guro ko
Ang klase kong Sardius: heto ang simula, bawat galaw, bawat araw, siguradong may tula, heto ang pagtugon; Heto naroroon, heto ang simula, ang klaseng tumutula.

Handog

Sa umpisa’y lito ako,
Paano kaya ako sa ’yo ay gagabay?
Hinuha ko, mahirap ang tagumpay,
Sa tulad mo, at tulad ko-
Na hindi pa magkaugnay.

Hindi kita makilala,
Madalas hindi maunawaan;
Lungkot nadarama,
Tungkulin ,hirap gampanan.

Isinama kita sa panalangin,
Nawa ako’y Kaniyang dinggin;
Katangiang kailangan ko, mangyaring ipagkaloob sa akin;

Panalangi’y dininig.
Oh anong bait Niya,
Unti-unti kang nagkahugis,
Ugnayan ay nag-umpisa;
Bibig ayaw mungsap-
Sa ibang paraan hinanap.

Sa Mata-
May likot kung may takot,
May kislap kung may tuwa;

Sa Kamay-
Mahigpit iyong kapit,
Kapag tila mundo mo ay masikap;
Anong likot naman kung igalaw,
kung may ibig “isigaw”
Sa iyong mga iginuguhit,
aking iniintinding pilit;
Iyong saloobin,
pang-una’w ang kapalit.

Sa Paa-
Lakad anong bilis,

Lundag walang humpay, sa kapaligirang makulay.
Sa tinapay na alok mo,
Dama ko ang pag-alala mo;
Sa ngiti at halakhak mo,
Napawi na ang pagod ko.

Ngayon, kung ika’y minamasdan,
Galak ka sa puso ng karamihan;
Maliit man sa iba ang iyong tagumpay,
Sa akin, at sa pamilya mo,
Karangalan itong tunay.

Binago mo ako,
hindi ako ang bumago sa iyo;
Loob ko’y pinababa mo,
Hinahon ko’y pinaiting mo.

Ngayo’y alan ko na kung sino ka,
Akin na nga kitang kilala…
HANDOG ka ngang tunay,
Sa akin… at sa kanila.

Isang Dekada Na

Isa kang nilikha na mayroon ding karapatan;
Mag-aral katulad ng iba bilang mamamayan.
Maari dito kaya na dito sa ating paaralan?

Kaalama’y linangin, hubugin –tulad ng karaniwan.
Nagtipon yaring mabubuting kalooban,
Inihanay ang edukasyon na siya mong kailangan;
Isinamo sa Ama na makapangyarihan,
Ang adhikaing ito, nawa’y magampan.

Maraming pagsubok ang mga di-
naanan,
‘pagkat hindi madali -na kanila kung maunawaan;
Sa kabila nito, di nasira ng loob mga kaagapay mo;
Ipinagpatuloy itong tungkulin, at panalan para sa iyo.

Sa paglipas ng bawat taon ay biyaya ang hatid Niya,
Matagumpay na nairaraos
Itong edukasyon, salamat sa Kaniya;
Sa paaralang ito, lahat ng bawat makasal-
amuh,
Ligaya ang hatid ‘pagkat ramdam mo na ika’y kaisa.

Parang kahapon lang, ahh.. isang dekada na pala,
Mga mumunting ambag sa iyong pag-aaral,
-ngayo’y umunlad na;
Patuloy pa nawa ang pagtulong una na ng Ama,
Maging kakasan a namin kahit ilang dekada pa.

God Gave Me You

By ELVIE LASQUI TE

“and all that I’m worth is right before my eyes. Now that I live for and I didn’t know why. Now I do...‘cause God gave me you” problems. All of these are anatomical defects which a child with Down Syndrome tends to have. As they grow old, more defects of this kind would be manifested.

Since my Nielsen needs so much caring and attention, we tried to give him the best that he could get. We decided to enroll him in Kumon at age 4 because he could hardly utter a word, but in a month’s time, I heard him reading a book by Dr. Zeuss.

Miracles do happen indeed. We constantly have devotional prayers for him to be blessed and be a faithful servant of our God. But again, trials tested our undying faith. I was diagnosed to have breast cancer and undergone mastectomy. Fearing that I would not have enough time for my son, I decided to resign from my teaching profession and I would tell myself... “If I would be given few remaining years of my life, I would rather spend those years with my son Nielsen.”

Since then, I looked for a school that would appreciate and accept children of his kind. Then I thought that no school would give him much caring and acceptance than this school which caters his special needs.

...and all that I’m worth is right before my eyes. Now that I live for and I didn’t know why. Now I do...‘cause God gave me you (Nielsen).

Explaining Autism to My Son

By NH DE LA CRUZ

My son Damian was diagnosed with autism in 2004 when he was 3 ½ years old. For years, he had occupational and speech therapy sessions (once or twice a week). Aside from his sessions with professionals, he also had therapy sessions with his Nanay and Tatay at home. On top of this, he was going to regular school.

When he was in Grade II in a previous school, he had speech therapy inside the campus, every Friday at 1:00pm. The sessions coincided with a school subject so he was being pulled out of class for his weekly session with a therapist. Diligent that he is in complying with school work (however hard some subjects were for him in second grade), he asked in his inarticulate way then why he needed to have therapy when his classmates don’t have to.

It was then I started explaining autism to him. I told him he has autism and his classmates don’t have the condition.

Of course, his next question was “What is autism, Nanay?”

It was a big challenge for me—explaining autism to my son with autism. Of course, explaining the technicalities of Pervasive Development Disorder-Not Otherwise Specified or PDD-NOS could only add to the confusion. So I explained his condition in points that he could understand.

I told him: children with autism have difficulties in some or many things that are easier in other children. I told him about not having a tolerance for a longer eye contact with other people, about difficulties in making friends, about insisting on having the same route when walking around our village (only clockwise or counterclockwise), about preferring only a specific brand of juice, about tantrums, about having difficulties in gripping a pencil, and a lot more. Of course I explained these things not in one seating and setting. And I also explained about difficulties in speaking and articulation, where his need for a speech therapy comes in.

I also told him: children with autism can also accomplish many things easier that other children with no autism find difficulties with. I told my son about his strengths and about his discipline. These were too abstract for him. He was crunching his forehead and there was a virtual questionmark hovering over his head.

So I told him about kids that we both know who find it difficult to get up early for school (my son wakes up at 5:30 am everyday); about kids who spends long time tinkering with food and who only prefer junk food (my son eats ampalaya and other vegetables); about kids who don’t want to do homework (my son wants to finish doing his homework before going to bed); about children who spend 8-10 hours a day watching TV, playing on the computer or using the iPad (my son complies with his schedule at home in which he could only use the computer 1.5 hours, 4 days a week only); and a lot more.

The thing is, I told him, “Anak, you and Nanay and Tatay could translate your rigidities to discipline, and this is a good thing.”

Explaining autism to Damian becomes easier when there is an incident I could use. When he was nine years old, we had neighbors with kids that he could play with. The problem was, he could only join habulan in which the rule is simple to grasp—he fast and don’t get caught. He couldn’t join patintero because the mechanics and rules are too complex for him to understand. So he just watched the kids play without him. In one of these instances, he stood up, went inside the house and took his snowman sculpture that he made with a little help from his Nanay and Tatay. He showed it to the kids and they were staring at the snowman in awe. Damian was bombarded with “Did you make that?” In which my son replied, smiling: “Yes. Help ako Nanay and Tatay ko.”

We talked about that incident before going to bed. I pointed out to my son, that yes, at nine years old he has difficulties in socialization and grasping patintero rules. But he could make an artwork such as Mr. Snowman which his playmates said they couldn’t do. There are many things he could do. I told him not be disheartened with difficulties and limitations. Nanay and Tatay, Titos and Titas, Lolos and Lolas are always ready to help him. □

I also told my son, “Children with autism can also accomplish many things easier that other children with no autism find difficulties with”.

Educating CWSN Through Digital Talking Books

By JOSEPHINE PALOMARES

A pupil utilizing one of our e-learning materials

The Autism Society Philippines-Diliman Chapter gave a short lecture on Rights of Persons with Disabilities to the Special Education faculty of New Era University last 05 July 2013, in celebration of the National Disability Prevention and Rehabilitation Week. Former Parents and Teacher President (SPED-PTA) Josephine Palomares gave the lecture to around 18 teachers of the SPED Department, using the CD “Educating Children with Disabilities using the Digital Talking Books”.

Talking Books.” The CD is a project of ASP funded by Australian Aid. It teaches the three basic rights of the child via learning stories using the DAISY format that runs on AMIS platform. ASP hopes that more and more children with disabilities will learn their basic rights through the help of their teachers. The NEU-SPED Family were very receptive and recognized the relevance of utilizing Daisy to teach other lessons to children with special needs (CWSN).

SPED Awareness in NEU Lipa Batangas

By Teacher LIEZEL A. VARGAS

Dr. Liezel A. Vargas (2nd row, 8th from left), with the administrators, faculty and staff of NEU-Lipa Batangas Branch

On August 7, 2013 the university administrator requested Dr. Liezel A. Vargas to conduct a seminar-workshop (two topics) entitled “Handling Children and Youth with Special Educational Needs (CYSEN) in the Inclusive Education” and “New Era flowers to the faculty and staff members for the learnings and assistance they have given to our students. The next department that was given a similar SPED Awareness activity was the school’s Security Forces. The topics were represented by Bro. Ed H. Lumbao. The activity also served as a meeting with the school’s security head officer in terms of our students’ safety and welfare.

University Special Education Program: One of the Pioneers of Inclusive Education in the Philippines” in Lipa Batangas branch. The focus of this professional development seminar-workshop was to increase the knowledge of educators by helping them understand and integrate current curriculum K-12 adaptation in daily practices, understand and manage CYSEN, and provide effective instruction and assessment. The roles of administrators, regular teachers and staff in inclusive practices were also discussed. The help and full support of the University administration and the Principal of NEU-Lipa Batangas branch Bro. Duquena, contributed to the success in this undertaking.
