

As I reflect in the above webinar series and the 13 topics that were thoroughly discussed. I remember one particular question during the previous series. How can government and other stakeholders can help in facilitating lifelong learning in spite of the pandemic? How can teachers and educators make the Covid 19 pandemic challenges as catalyst for new ways of learning and living. The answers to these questions were the given 11 topics that are being presented today. From Digital Etiquette to a new way of teaching using behavioral simulation.

Truly Covid 19 became the driver for digital learning. And when we talk of digital learning we would ask? Is it good in terms of quality? All the presenters and lectures have different creative ways of presenting their topics and I find it very useful and informative. Thank you SEAMEO and congratulations for another successful and fruitful webinar series. More power.
